The Alabama Claims in St. Petersburg-What the Russians Say About Them-England Still Accused-The Herald as the Bearer of

Glad Tidings to the Palace. St. PETERSBURG, Feb. 11, 1872. The Catacazy excitement has here—as well as everywhere else—given place to the Alabama quesn. Personal difficulties and childish quarreis lose their interest upon the appearance of questions relating to peace and war between two countries ake the United States and England; and Mr. Cata-eazy and his maciunations have dwindled seemingly into comparative insignificance. WHE ANGLO-AMERICAN DIPPICULTY—WHAT IS SAID ABOUT IT.

When the news came that the Washington Cabinet had decided not to reconsider thier interpretacurities went down with a suddenness that must enliged to sell, and the probable results of a conflict are discussed in a way that is somewhat amusing those who, like myself, believe there is not the slightest probability of a war between Eng-land and the United States. "The Americans would take Canada," say some. "Yes," it is replied, "but that would be no great loss to England nd no great gain to the United States, especially if Canadrans do not want to be annexed. England would be getting off cheap with the loss of Canada in exchange for the enormous claims brought forward by the Washington government."

essions," says another. "No," replies a third; that would necessitate a fleet capable of coping with England's mighty navy-a fleet the Americans te not possess and cannot construct in a day." "Their swift sailing privateers might sweep Eng-sh commerce from the seas, however, in spite of heir heavy lumbering iron-clads, that will never be able to give chase to the LIGHT-HEELED AMERICAN CRUISERS."

"That's true," adds some one else, "out those iron-clads can bombard and burn down the American seaboard towns."

"It will be a long and desultory struggle, because the parties will never be able to get close enough together to measure fairly their strength, and it will consequently engender more hatred and bad brood than a regular fight where one of the parties should be fairly beaten, as in the case of France and Germany." And so the pros and cons and the probable chances and ultimate results are discussed as seriously as though war had been actually declared between the two countries, discussed as seriously as though war had been setually declared between the two countries. No Danger.

NO DANGER.

Those, however, who know the two peoples as well as they know themselves do not apprehend any great danger from this sudden attempt to equifful out of a tight place on one side and the solution of anger on the other.

The Russian World, however, in giving a résume of the points at issue, remarked that hey had been informed, upon the best authority, that Prince Gortschakoff had determined to use all his influence with the Washington Cabinet to induce them to make their demands as moderate as possible; but concluded with the curious and somewhat significant observation that of course it would be difficult to conceive now the claims of the American government could be anything else than moderate. Mr. Disraeli Desires Information from Mr. Gladstone-The Fremier Replies that, in the Absence of the Customary Notice, He Must afternoon of the 19th uit, Mr. Disraell and Mr. Gladstone had a little lift over the American claims. The following are the circumstances:—

Mr. Disraell—I should be scrupulous not to ask any question at the present moment which bore upon the controversy which uniortunately exists between Her Majesty's government and that of the United States, but the question I am abone to put does not involve the merits of that controversy. If, however, relates to a matter upon which great public increest is excited, and it refers to the time and to the circumstances under which the American case was first received by Her Majesty's government. Industry the desire which the American case was first received by Her Majesty's government. Industry the desire should be about a mouth, and that it had been printed for the use of numbers of the Cabinet. Since then ine statement has been made, and I am bound to say that statement has been made, and I am bound to say that statement has been brought before me by what I deem authority, that the American case was in the possession of the government about the middle of December, and that within forty-eight hours after the first copy of R was transmitted to the government a sunticient humber of copies were forwarded for the use of the Cabinet. Under these circumstances, I think it would be very interesting to the country if the right honorable gentleman would more precisely inform the House as to the time and as to the circumstances under which the American case was first brought before left Majesty's government, which have the kindness, in compliance with the originary heady of the case and the time of receiving documents, some notice were given. If the right honorable gentleman will have the kindness, in compliance with the originary usage, to give the customary notice, I will take care that the best information we may possess on the subject is given to him. As regards the particulars of rhis question, therefore, I think it had better not attempt to enter upon them at the precent moment. I imperialist papers nave been full of rumors as to what the Bonapartists intended. If we are to believe all that we are tool in print morning and evening a coup de matin or a coup didat from thiselning a coup de matin or a coup didat from thiselnurst is as certain before Easter as the sessions of the Councils General or high mass at Notre Dame. With the government, especially since M. Casimir Perier resigned office, the imperialist intributes form a standing burbear. What M. Conii said, to whom he wrote, who custled at his or at M. Rouher's residence—these matters for weeks formed regular daily reports to the Prefecture of Police. As an instance of this I may mention that the day I went to call upon M. Roulier the friend who took me there pointed out an individual in plain clothes, slowly pacing up and down the street on the opposite side. "Do you see that than i' he asked me. "That is a police agent; he will be relieved presently by another of his order; and depend upon it that, although you, as an Englishmen, may believe yourself nuknown in Paris, your name, vocation and the time you remain here, will be duly recorded at the Prefecture of Police before noon." And my friend was right. From an authentic source I learned next day that my visit to the ex-Emperor's Minister had been noted and duly recorded at the Scotland Yard of Paris, for the benefit of those whom it night concern. Almost, then as a matter of course, my first question to M. Rouher was respecting the meended movements of the imperialist concern. Almost, then as a matter of course, my first question to M. Rouher was respecting the meended movements of the imperialist concern. Almost, then as a matter of course, and the like. M. Rouher smiled, and replied that he would tell me in very lew words. "We are waiting our time," he said, "We believe that not to-day nor to-morrow, but certainly ere very long, France will declare herself tired and weary of an administration that does nothing and has no fixed or settled political opinions; and will, almost as as one man, call back, if not the best government, certainly the only one possible, under present circumstances. We are trying to live down the calumines which were heaped upon the Emperor after Sedan, and we have already lived them down in a

Sedan, and we have already lived them down in a great measure."

I then asked, "By what means do you expect the Emperor will ever return to France? Surely not by a vote of the National Assembly?"

"No," he replied; "out is it in the nature of things that the present Assembly can hold together? I grant you that it is composed of honorable, honest men, nearly all of them convinced of their own opinions; but is it possible, with the intense animosity existing between the different sections of the Chamber, that it can ever effect any good?"

"But," I replied, "would not every party, or part of a party, in the House unite as one man against any proposition (avorable to the Emperor, or lending towards bringing back the regime of the empire."

'You are quite right" was M. Ronher's reply; of a party, in the House unite as one man agains any proposition favorable to the Emperor, or tending towards bringing back the régime of the empire?"

"You are quite right?" was M. Rouher's reply; "but I wit answer your question by asking another. Does the National Assembly represent the present feeling of the French nation? The republican party of every shade of opinion will be the first to tell you that it does not, and that if there was a general election in France to-morrow the majority of the Chamber would be composed of radicals, in comparison with whom M. Gambetta and the gentlemen of the 4th of September would be conservatives, if not reactionists. The monarchical party know this, and they dare not albeated to the country. For the result would be about the Assembly. Even the moderate republican party dare not an peal to the country, for the result would be albander very far in advance of themselves."

Here I objected:— There is no legal reason why the Assembly should be dissolved; it may remain for an midefinite time, and as public opinion has, you say, changed in the country, it may change again—become more conservative."

"That," said M. Rouher, "would only increase the difficulties of the country. The Chamber has deciared itself 'constituent;' it must, therefore, constitute something. Can it declare the republic 'What would the various subdivisions of the monarchical party say to that.' Would they for a moment entertain the idea? On the other hand, can they declare a monarchy? Whom will they take for King? Has the Come de Chambord a chance? He has many faithful, honorable, high-minded followers in the Assembly but do they forh such a majority as could ever place him on the throne—fair 1-s keep him there? In France it is not as in England, where the real strength and power of the country is virtu'nly in the hands of the nobility, the landed gentry, the wealthy bankers or merchanis, the higher clergy and the distinguished lawyers. In France the strength of the country is with the bourgeoise, the mindl imagined. What France wants is order and se-curity. The Assembly, not being able to consti-tute any definite form of government, must end by dissolving itself. If it does so there will be for the country the alternative of anarchy under a very red republic, or order under the empire. Which do you think France will select? I repeat, opinions may differ as to the best form of government; but there can be but one opinion what is the only gov-ernment possible.

be agreed to, and that the resolution approved by the Mayor in 1869, approving of the same, be rescinded and repealed. The resolution was approved by a vote of 9 to 5.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE COMPTROLLER.
A communication was read from the Comptroller which said that the appropriation for the expenses of the Common Council, from January 1 to April 30, 1872, amounted to $73,666 66, and that the amount already paid was $10,666 66, leaving a balance of $63,000 10. On motion of Alderman Van Schalek, a special committee was ordered to be appointed to conier with the Committee of Assistant Alderman in reference thereto.

THE PAY OF THE LABOREES.
Alderman MARTIN called up the Iolio fixed at the rate of $2.50 per day, to date from the approval of the resolution of the Mayor.

Alderman Conovers pointed out that section thirteen of the charter prevented the Board from calling upon the departments to pay the laborers. That was entirely delegated to the several departments, and he did not wish the Board to stuitly itself. If the mover of the resolution would so amend as to call upon the Legislature to fix the rate of $2.50 per day, he (Alderman Conover) would vote for it. He thought it was necless to deceive the people by the Board trying to get political capital out of it that way. The resolution was referred back to Committee on Salaries and Offices.

Alderman Conovers moved the following, which was unanimously agreed to:

Resolved, That the several gaslight companies of this city be and they are hereby required to report to this Board, as soon as possible, a statement giving in detail the number of passived lamps lighted and paid for by the city, the number fighted for private owners by any resolution or direction from the Common Council, waich is paid for at the public expense, and the number lighted for and used by any individual or company in or upon his or their premises, without such direction or authority, which is charged for and paid by the city.

A large amount of routine business was then gone throught, and the Board adjourned about half-past five o'clock.

BOARD OF ASSISTANT ALDERMEN.

Car Fares on the Eighth Avenue Railroad Public Assessments and Iron-Clad Ash Cans-Report of the Finance Committee. The Board of Assistant Aldermen met yesterday fternoon. In the absence of the President, Mr. Otis T. Hall, the chair was occupied by Assistant Alderman Galvin.

After the usual routine business had been tran sacted Assistant Alderman Connor moved a resolution to the effect that the Corporation Counsel be directed to inform the Board if in his opinion

THE EIGHTH AVENUE RAILROAD COMPANY to charge five cents extra fare for conveying pas laborers employed on the Boulevard were compelled to pay five cents above the street mentioned when going to their work; so that many of them having only $2 a day had to pay, altogether, twenty cents a day for car fare. He considered that such a charge was unjust and extortionate. The resolution was adopted.

ASSESSMENTS FOR IMPROVEMENTS. Assistant Alderman Gris next moved that all streets, avenues, sines and all public places that had been graded, sewered and paved at the expense of the property owners of the property benefited thereby should not again be assessed for any improvement, but that all assessments, charges and expenses for such further improvements should be at the expense of the city. The communication was received and ordered to be placed on file.

IRON-CLAD ASH CANS.

Assistant Alderman Geis having called attention to the fact that by resolution of the Board of Health property owners were compelled to adopt a certain vessel known as "the iron-clad asin can," moved that the name or names of the party furnishing such can be given to the Board, and also whether any contract existed between the patentee and the Board of Health. He also moved that the Corporation Counsel be directed to inform the Board whether property owners can be compelled to adopt any specially described vessel for the removal of ashes or garbage.

THE HAWKINS MITE

Twenty-five Dollars Sent the Werald by a Citizen for the Poor Blind Girl's Sewing Machine-More About the Ten Dollar Bili-The disposal of the celebrated "Hawkins Mite" ontinues to engage the public mind, and very rightly too, as in our present perplexity regarding it we are not adverse to being advised. That Mr. Dexter A. Hawkins, in the generous spirit with which he donated to the HERALD that renowned "ten (10) dollar bill," has been the author of at least a little good (we have not said intentionally), must, by this time, appear to our readers, but the following fact proves the assertion:—

Jennie Thombson wrote us the other day a letter, in which she recommended the use of the $10 bil to aid in buying a sewing machine for a poor bilad girl, who is an inmate of an asylum, offering to make efforts to raise the rest of the necessary sum. In answer to this appeal Mr. B. Nathan, of No. 4 Gilsey Building, sends to us $25, which we now hole in readiness to pay to the writer of the appeal whenever she may call upon the cashier of the HERALD office.

We have received other communications respecting the Hawkins Mite, which we publish below.

of it; but I regret that, up to this time, you have faued to find a place for it that is satisfactory to you.

I come to your assistance, Mr. Editor, and think you will find my suggestion so worthy of your attention that you will instantly adopt it.

Bribery is emphatically the prominent curse of our country to-day, and he is his country's greatest benefactor that shall institute successful measures to suppress it. The most efficient way to suppress it is to prosecute with energy every scoundrel who dares attempt to corrupt his neighbor with a bribe. It requires money to conduct such prosecutions, and my suggestion is that you make the $10 received from Mr. Dexter A. Hawkins the nucleus of a public fund to be used in bringing to justice all miscreants who, judging their neighbors by themselves, think that men, like sheep, can be bought for $10 a head, and accordingly invest their miscrable money for such purchases.

All men who attempt to bribe any one are knaves, but the man who attempts to bribe the Herald with a paitry $10 or any other sum is a knave and a fool too.

To the Editor of the Herald:—
I would suggest that you send the "Hawkins Mite" to Binghamton, to be used in repairing the grave of Edward H. Rulloff this spring. It was re cently destroyed by a lot of rufflans because of a few flowers laid on it by a lady who had never seen Ruiloff, but who believed nim worthy of some re-spect, for he was not a drunkard or a libertine, and those are characters which it is not rare for men to possess in this section. He was not a member of any church so he was not a hypocrite. Yours, truly,

TAMMANY SOCIETY.

The Report of the Committee of Twenty-Two

The Tammany Society met last evening at Tammany Hail, Fourteenth street, Augustus Schell presiding. Considerable anxiety had been felt by politicians about this meeting, as it was presumed that with a committee of the General Committee, would report. The Committee of Twenty-two, however, through its chairman, John Kelly, asked for further time, and it was accordingly agreed upon that the report would be readed. through its chairman, John Kelly, asked for further time, and it was accordingly agreed upon that the report would be ready and be presented at a meeting to be held next saturday evening. Mr. Kelly stated that the Committee of Twenty-two had finished its labors and arrived at a conclusion upon disputed points, but some of its members had had conversations on the subject of reorganization with leading democrats of this city, and it was then found that the latter were not at all in harmony with the views of the committee. Hence some more time was needed in order that changes should be made in the report. Short speeches were made during the meeting by Augustus Scheil, Mr. Ottendorfer, Mr. Chanler and Mr. Bartow.

Barlow.

It is probable that about fifty-four out of the one nungred and odd disputed claims for membership shall be decided in favor of the claimants. It is not yet determined upon whether or not the election for membership of the General Committee shall be by wards or by Assembly districts.
